

Roswell Airlines/New Mexico Air

Roswell Airlines was based in Roswell, New Mexico and provided commuter airline service on an Albuquerque-Ruidoso-Artesia-Roswell route beginning September 15, 1975. The stops at Ruidoso and Artesia were flag stops made upon passenger request. Flights on a Roswell-Artesia-Carlsbad-El Paso route and from Ruidoso to El Paso were added by July, 1977. The carrier had planned to serve Hobbs and Clovis, New Mexico but the service did not materialize. Roswell Airlines first used a Piper Seneca aircraft and obtained larger Piper Navajo Chieftain aircraft in late 1977. The carrier changed its name to New Mexico Air shortly before it ceased operations in mid-1978.
