

Denver Air Connection

Denver Air Connection (DAC) is a division of Key Lime Air which was established in 1997 and is based at the Centennial Airport in Denver, Colorado. DAC is the scheduled passenger service operation while Key Lime Air provides cargo feeder service for UPS. DAC received a federal Essential Air Service contract to serve Clovis, New Mexico with two daily flights to Denver using 30-seat Fairchild Dornier 328Jets that began on May 1, 2020. In mid-2021 DAC upgraded their Clovis service to 50-seat Embraer-145 regional jets and on November 1 of that year the carrier added a new daily flight from Clovis to Dallas/Fort Worth while reducing the Clovis to Denver service to one daily flight. Key Lime/Denver Air Connection also provides passenger charter flights and has operated many charters throughout New Mexico, mainly for college basketball teams. A regular weekly charter flight between Carlsbad, New Mexico and Denver's Centennial Airport operated from July, 2021 through February, 2023 using a 328Jet.

Denver Air Connection route map from November, 2022.

Denver Air Connection Fairchild Dornier 328Jet at the Clovis Regional Airport in 2020.

Denver Air Connection Embraer 145 regional jet at the Clovis Regional Airport in 2022.