

Great Southwest Aviation

Great Southwest Aviation is the fixed base operator at the Roswell International Air Center in Roswell, New Mexico. On January 14, 1985 the company began scheduled airline service between Roswell and Santa Fe with one roundtrip, three days per week using a Piper Cheyenne aircraft. The service only lasted for a few months, ending by mid-1985.